

UPON ARRIVAL

unpack and place roots in bucket of water. Never for a minute expose them to drying air or sun. If they seem dry, leave them in water for a few days before planting. Unless the soil is actually frozen you can plant roses any time now even when the weather is cold and rainy.

DIG IT DEEP

Rose bushes need lots of room. Hole should be 2½' deep where it is well drained. Next build a cone of good topsoil at the bottom of the planting hole. Carefully spread roots out and down over the cone in their natural growing position, sifting soil in around each root to prevent air pockets.

TAKE SAME CARE

when you fill in the hole that you leave no air pockets. Use lots of water around the cone and then gradually fill with good soil to within about 6" from the top. Tamp the soil all around (if it's rainy and wet wait to firm 'til it dries a little).

FLOOD IT AGAIN

after a day or two when the soil has settled. Then fill to the top with a loose, light soil. Go back and firm the soil around the new planting for a few weeks . . . and if it's very cold and apt to freeze, give them a light mulch to prevent heaving.

SUMMER JOBS

in your rose garden include regular and frequent spraying or dusting; taking care always that both sides of the leaves are covered! Very light cultivation . . . and deep-down irrigating in the mornings throughout the summer will keep the growth healthy and new flowers coming.

WHEN YOU CUT

roses for bouquets, use a very sharp-bladed clipper. A clean, slanted cut will not bruise the stem. Cut just above the second leaf-twig from the next branch fork. This will leave sufficient strength for continuous vigorous growth . . . and assure more blossoms for your bouquets all season.

SCAPPOOSE, OREGON

Oregon's Best Source

of Good Roses

Budded to a PD super strain of multiflora root stock and grown under exacting care in the PD rose fields at Scappoose, Oregon.

The Rose is the favorite flower of all ages. It grows to hardy and perfect form in the lower Columbia River area of Oregon where pure air, fertile soil and a long growing season are ideal for Rose culture. As this hardy stock approaches maturity it continues to thrive when transplanted anywhere in the Northern Hemisphere. Supplied with deep rich soil, ample water and protection during freezing weather, an Oregon-grown rose will reward its owner with an abundance of beautiful blooms. A super strain of multiflora root stock makes PD field grown Roses more hardy. They produce sturdier and more beautiful bushes under any reasonable growing conditions.

THE DUKE PLANT PAT. NO. 1522

Big, bold, colorful—and very charming. The large size of the blooms is emphasized by the distinctive coloring—a rich carmine red, illuminated by the flush of light gold on the underside of the petals. The plant is strong, medium to tall in growth. The foliage is large and glossy. $2.50 each; 3 for $6.60.

ENCORE PLANT PAT. NO. 1662

A bright and cheerful floribunda which will perform for you again and again. The plant is sturdy and vigorous, of medium height, and will require a minimum of care. The foliage is slender, glossy and clean. Its resistance to disease is well above average. During the growing season, Encore is constantly dressed in clusters of bright pink bloom. The individual flower is quite dainty, lightly cupped, 14-petaled, 3 inches in diameter. There is a pleasing contrast in color between the inner and outer surfaces of the petals. The face is a lustrous creamy pink, while the outer surface is rose pink. This is an enthusiastic rose. If it were less graceful, we might feel obliged to call it boisterous. $2.25 each; 3 for $6.00.

BURNABY PLANT PAT. NO. 1314

A light yellow hybrid tea rose of unexcelled classic form. Burnaby has already proven itself as a producer of blooms of exhibition quality. The plant is tall and vigorous. Gold medal winner in the United States and England. $2.50 each; 3 for $6.60.

AMY PLANT PAT. NO. 1455

Resembles a pink pincushion in full bloom! Dainty little buds open into rich satin-pink clusters of blooms. Hardy, symmetrical floribunda, grows about 2½ feet tall, blooms continuously. $2.00 each; 3 for $5.25.
